MISKOLC

The event was held in the Chamber of Commerce and Trade building (BOKEK) of the Borsod-Abaúj-Zemplén County, Miskolc, in 3. Mindszent square, the Governmental office. The goal of establishing the chamber is to create cooperative opportunities and manage them which help and assure private individuals' and entrepreneurs' direct economic and social relations through shared values. Furthermore, it aims to facilitate cooperation based on common interests. The membership in the chamber is an extremely useful asset for its members, since the main quest of the chamber is to solve the labour market issues currently prevalent, especially for technical education.

The central topic of this event was also the labour market, and to find most notable correlations of it with the education's problems. In other words, evaluating the connections between employment policy and education policy. The forum between BOKIK and the participants was managed as a sort of experience exchange, where the community working for the equality on the entire labour market also had opportunities to detail their knowledge and opinions.

Presentations were held by several individuals, including Dr. Áron Szekeres, the HR manager of Joyson Safety Systems Hungary Co. Ltd., and the profession executive of BOKIK's HR club.

To close the discussions, participants drew the conclusion that employment policy must support the modernisation of higher education's professional structure in order to facilitate better cooperation between labour demand and supply. There's also a need to strengthen adult education's equality programmes, develop the extension and postgraduate courses, spread remote education, and strengthen lifelong learning and learning society's methodologies.

Topics of the event completely overlapped with the goals of the PLM Programme, since offering the PLM perspective and knowledge is linked via several channels to people, institutions, organisations, enterprises, and labour market equality. The programme finds it important, and stresses spreading aware life management methods for the disadvantaged social castes. Introducing them its system, as educated labour will find opportunities and their place in an organisation much faster, meanwhile, being a more satisfied and useful member of the community, for the current labour market wants educated, well-prepared and capable labour who know their expected tasks in advance, understand their responsibilities, and see their employers' goals.
